Come walk with me into the forest's blessed abode,
To see the wondrous beauty the Dehradun has bestowed;
We'll be lost in the greenery that surrounds us,
And listen to nature composing the melodious songs
As sounds of whispering trees and burbling streams,
Send our minds wandering into a poet's lovely dreams.
We'll walk where sunlight comes in the college arena,
Weaving open paths for our future to go
Where trees shade us from summer heat and harsh rays,
Freeing our minds so we can see calm our ways,
Of creating beautiful nature it nurtures all children,
Let nature grow so as the future of the young one.

Time to think about Appointment to the Higher Judiciary

The appointment of judges to the High Courts and the Supreme Court of India is becoming a vexed issue and immediate solution needs to be found so that the justice delivery system is not adversely affected. The Supreme Court of India by its judgement in Supreme Court Advocates-on-Record Association vs. Union of India has assumed authority in regard to the appointment of judges and it has held that the recommendation of the collegium of the Supreme Court is final in the matter. Having done so, it is the duty of the collegiums both at the High Court level as well as in the Supreme Court to discharge the said responsibility with due diligence so that the best amongst the available are appointed as judges to the higher judiciary. That apart, the position in most of the High Courts in India is alarming as many of them are functioning at half their strength. In order to maintain the sanctity of the collegium system, the system needs to reinvent itself and come out in a new avatar. One of the contentious issues in the present system is the manner in which the collegium selects a particular name.

The Government has been alleging that there is a complete lack of transparency as well as a lack of objectivity in the system. To allay the said apprehensions, the system requires a relook. Suggestions- Each collegium should prescribe certain essential qualifications for considering a name for elevation. The criteria can be, namely, prescribing a particular age group in which lawyers are to be considered for elevation, a minimum income for the particular High Court and it could be different for different High Courts. Lastly, the number of minimum reported judgements that the candidate should have for elevation. Once these criteria are spelt out for different High Courts, then a permanent secretariat should be created at each High Court to scan all the names on the basis of the qualifications referred above amongst lawyers practicing in the state as well as lawyers practicing in the Supreme Court from that state.

There are some outstanding lawyers practicing in the trial courts as well as practicing in the tribunal and some of them working in law firms. It should be the endeavor of the collegium system to find out the best candidates and do an extensive exercise of searching into all possible names before finalizing its recommendation. The contention that the judges in the collegium should know a candidate before making any recommendation for his elevation is retrograde as this may result in the members of the collegium resorting to favoritism. Once the qualifications are spelt out then every lawyer fulfilling that qualification should be considered for elevation irrespective of whether he appears in the courts of the members of the collegium or not. Accordingly, distinguished members of the bar practicing in the Supreme Court will get an equal opportunity for being elevated as judges of their parent High Court. Once such a master list is prepared, the permanent secretariat should seek opinion or comments on all these names from two eminent senior advocates practicing in the relevant High Court nominated by the collegiums of the High Court so as to obtain their views with regard to advisability of elevating such persons from that list as judges of the High Court. The said master list along with the views of the senior advocates should then be placed before the collegiums for their consideration who should then review all the names before making their recommendations for elevation. This procedure will obviate any possibility of nepotism, favoritism and will bring in complete transparency in the appointment of judges. It should also be provided in the guidelines for appointment of judges that if a relation or direct junior of collegium member is being considered for elevation then he or she should rescue, and the next senior judge of collegium be co-opted for the meeting of the collegium.

Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap

Life had been a Sturm und Drang. Treading on the knife's edge; being succumbed to affliction is all that I have ever got in my life. One never really contemplates what others may feel, unless one goes through the same situation, a situation of melancholy, sorrow, and tragedy.

Back in the days of my childhood, when we were naive, innocent and docile, we were overwhelmed by felicity and glee. I have a blurred remembrance of a chubby little girl named Amaira when I was in class eight.

She always used to remain silent and genteel but what devastating was that she was bullyragged because she had a lisp. Words scarred her, rumors destroyed her and the bullies killed her. The bullying didn't stop, it only escalated. For years, she was tortured and bullied for her appearance, weight and literally every single thing that made her, her. She felt so terribly jaded and perturbed by the world, that a year later she committed suicide. Oh! Her world turned dark and so did mine, as her last words still keep reverberating in my ears.

"Tears have been flooding down my face; breathing is a task that now seems impossible. I draw my legs closer and closer into my chest as I try to transform the pressure into reassuring comfort. I begin to slowly rock myself and by now my tears have colored my pillow black."

I feel elegiac and remorse fills my heart when I recall this incident. Realization dawned upon me, that it is no cliché that words cause more pain than actions. The first lesson her death taught everyone around was that never ever hurt a person by making fun of his/her weaknesses. We should also not forget the law of Nature that what goes around comes around therefore we will be rewarded or punished according to the good or bad deeds that we do.

Considering, the rough-sledding in my life, I also learnt that there are no mistakes but only lessons that we need to master. We should always avoid toxic people as they defy logic and we should use our weaknesses to complement our strengths. Above all, a person should focus on the talents and qualities that he/she has and steadily grow into a better human being in this enigmatic and profound world.

'A perplexed minor finally getting into college'

Everyone is much awaited to end their school life and get enrolled into college life. But as soon we reach we get into a situation what's next? What the hell we want to do with our lives. We could go into medicine, law, journalism, etc and most colleges offer it. Your major has the potential to bring you happiness or make you suffer during the rest of your college career, as well as your professional pursuits thereafter (no pressure). If you declare a neuroscience major and realize that you completely hate all things that have to do with the brain, it might be difficult to jump ship depending on how much time you have left in school. Choosing a major may not be an easy feat, but once you learn a little bit about yourself, declaring what you love will come easy (getting through the coursework will be the real problem). If I talk about students I saw and experience during the First year it feels like the world is at your fingertips. New faces all around, the enthusiasm of getting recognised, beautiful places to wander with new friends seems like paradise. But that clock winds down too quickly by the announcement of the first-semester exam and debarred list though it creates a sign of heart attack among students, later it makes you realise a real figure where the passion lie i.e. is definitely your academic area. It's well said we need to go for hard and easy rules to live life. Though college life is not easy yet it surely gives a lifetime experience which gives a flashback to share our experience with others.

8th ICFAI Intra Moot Court Competition, 2020

Day: 1

On the fine drizzling afternoon of 28th January 2020 the gathering at the moot court hall erupted. The ICFAI 9th Intra Moot Court Competition, 2020 was about to be started in order to enhance the mooting, arguing and researching skills of the law students.

The event commenced by the lightening of the lamps by the Academic Coordinator Ms. Monica Kharola, Moot Court Coordinator Mr. Suneel Kumar (Faculty of Law), Faculty members Mr. Vishal Bera (Faculty of Law) and Mr. Avnish Bhatt (Faculty of Law). Post lightning of the lamp Ms. Monica Kharola was called upon to deliver her fine few words on the relevance of the competition which was followed by the speech of the Moot Court Coordinator Mr. Sunil Kumar. After that, the competition was officially declared to start.

All the participants were full of enthusiasm and were eagerly waiting for the rounds to start. As determined by the fixtures, the core- committee member Mr. Suyash asked the researchers of each team to approach one by one for the draw of lots of sessions. All the participating teams were classified in two rounds slot. Preliminary Round 1 and Preliminary Round 2 namely. Post this session, all the participants were directed to approach their respective courtrooms. In the meanwhile, all the court masters were asked to escort the judges to their respective courtrooms. In this chaotic atmosphere, the rounds began at 3:15 p.m.

As per the proposition cited, the tussle of words was revolving around one general contention on whether the consensual sex amounts to rape or not. On one hand, the judges were trying to elucidate the jurisdiction on which the appellant/respondents have approached the Hon'ble Supreme Court where the appellate side contended that the rape was maliciously committed with a fake promise to marry and since the Hon'ble HC opposed the same logic ,the petitioners were bound to appeal to the Supreme Court to get their grievances redressed. Contrary to this, the respondents argued that the consent was not given under any misconception and concealment of facts. Since it was sexual intercourse between two adults, the point of rape doesn't arise.

The arguments were majorly concerned with Article 136 of The Constitution of India, Section 90, 376, and 417 of Indian Penal Code, 1860.

Whereas some of the court rooms, presiding judges were continuously grilling the participants whereas in the other court rooms the same was a bit liberal.

Once the arguments and rebuttal rounds were over, the judges on the basis of the performance of the teams marked them accordingly. This called upon the end of day 1 rounds

Day 2 (29th January 2020)

The second day of the event began with a lot of enthusiasm among the participants who were qualified as the quarter-finalists. As determined by the fixtures the core committee member asked the researchers of the qualified teams to approach the moot court hall for the draw of lots session. Once the session got over, the teams were provided with their respected courtrooms. In the mean while, all the court masters were asked to escort the judges to the courtrooms. Since the proposition for the quarter-finals was the same as the first round, the arguments and contentions were revolving around the same facts and issues. With the neck to neck competition in the quarter-finals, four best teams emerged to qualify for the Semi-finals that was to take place on the same day.

The qualified teams for the semi-finals were asked to gather for the draw of lots of session. As soon as the session got over, in order to avoid further delay, the teams directly proceeded towards their respective courtrooms and soon the arguments commenced.

During the rounds, the respected Judges were enlightening the participants with certain extra knowledge and were thus bringing more clarity in thoughts.

Some teams failed to produce the copy of FIR (one of the conclusive evidence), handwriting expert's report to prove it or not the suicide note was written by the deceased, medical expert's report to clarify the doubts involved in the fracture of C2-C3 and hyoid bone which are more common in cases of strangulation rather than hanging and many more evidential documents as very precisely pointed by the learned Judges.

The Judges also tested the concepts of the participating teams by asking certain in-depth questions on the criminal procedural laws (CrPC), Indian Evidence Act, Indian Penal Code and certain factual questions for the concrete establishment of the case from either side. They asked the basis of the advocate asking "leading questions" to the witnesses, the importance of the statements given by the witnesses to the police, technicalities involved in the concept of "burden of proof", admissibility of the suicide note and several others, thus making the concepts crystal clear for future purposes. They also posed questions on the facts given like why did the parents even fulfill the demand of dowry for 6 long years as both giving and taking dowry is illegal in the eyes of law or why did her parents not take any action against the cruelty she faced for 6 long years and are filing FIR only after their daughter is dead which certainly are some important and thought-provoking questions to the present society as well.
